LAW-MAKERS HAVE DAY ON DIAMOND

Shaffer's Men Show Up Well in Their Practice Work.

HARD TO CHOOSE FROM LOT

All Look Good and Some Handle Themselves Like Veterans.

Le Mat in the City.

From the reading of the bills on the diamond yesterday, it looks as though Charlie Shaffer's Law-makers will make some team groggy before the base-ball season opens to an end. Each Law-maker had a pet measure that he introduced, and each proposed act was read for the first time and placed on the calendar.

There will be a committee meeting soon, and then the favorable statistics will become known.

The boys who are to compose the Richmond nine trotted out from Ford's place yesterday morning and took Grace Street as the avenue to the ball park.

The sight they presented sent many of the residents of this fashionable thoroughfare to the door to get a peep at the boys in different uniforms. Each man wore a different suit and some of the all kind, and the sizes and shapes of the men were about as different as the suits.

Long Well Named.

That fellow Long, who is to pitch, is properly named, too. He is up in the air about four inches after each foot and a half of his shoulders kind of bumps out from his spinal cord. This said he gets the twist out of that shoulder. He is the longest proposition to appear on the diamond, and he is built in proportion. If he can't play good ball no little man is going to point out his faults.

Charlie Shaffer had the entire crowd out. Reddy Foster, the veteran ball player, and a favorite with all Richmonders, was on the diamond, and he got his pliz in the picture. Reddy had about one hundred people in the grand stand and the bleachers who wanted to shake his mitt. And, too, he is a concher that can help Shaffer out a whole lot.

Reddy had just ended practice and started across the diamond to the dressing room. To demonstrate his popularity with every class and kind, he was followed by no less than twenty-five small boys.

Every urchin wanted to get a glimpse at the aburnt looking man who was a small one on May's Island.

Bretcher and Hamilton, at third, showed up remarkably well in practice, and Cown, the catcher, proved that he could keep the runners from committing self-larceny at the second sack. He has a good wing, and can bat them at a good clip.

Ball Still Going.

Wall, the man who is to take some of the high ones in the outfield, has a wing that would have brought him a fortune had he been chosen to play in the box. He showed how strong that arm was yesterday when he sailed a sphere out from deep center to the grand stand. And another time he didn't do a thing to the horsehide when it was put over the rubber. The ball hadn't been found yet. It went out over the house behind the fence in center field.

Rippenmeyer, at short, showed that he was fast after the ball, and the man who beats out a punt on him will have to travel a little. But the grounds were in bad condition, and the practice of the infielders didn't amount to as much as it otherwise would.

Hicks did some star work at second, and Sharp showed up well at first base. In the field, Jack Anthony and Rose pulled down all of the long ones that were sent in their direction.

Has Good Team.

Of course, it's too soon to forecast anything about which will compose the team, but the bunch that Manager Shaffer has to select from couldn't be improved upon.

"I will have an excellent team. All of the fellows show up nicely, and from the lot Richmond will get a team that will be proud of," said Mr. Shaffer yesterday after the practice.

Richmond College Games.

The Richmond College base-ball team will meet the Harvard University team in Norfolk next Monday, and on the following day will play an aggregation of ballplayers from Portsmouth. On next Thursday the Spiders will play the Lynchburg league nine and will go against the Kentucky University team here Friday of next week. On Saturday of next week the local college nine will play the team from Hampden-Sidney College.

account of lack of practice, having been kept from work by the weather, had demonstrated that there is strong material in the men.

The error of the home team consisted chiefly of bad throwing to bases. Otherwise the team work was good. Orth, for New York, and Kay, of Lynchburg, secured home runs. Attendance 1,000. The score by innings:
Lynchburg, 1; Richmond, 2-2-8-2
New York, 0-0-0-2-1-0-0-8-0-2
Batteries—Trotter and Lanham and Laval and Kay; Orth and McGuire. Summary: Stolen bases, Delahanty, 2; Keefe and Whelan, 2; two-base hits—McGuire, Trotter, Kay and Orth; single by Reles, 5; Laval, 14; Orth, 8. Earned runs—Lynchburg, 1; New York, 11. Time of game, 1 hour and 20 minutes. Umpire, N. G. Wilson.

W. AND L., 5; ST. JOHN'S, 0.

Collegians Could Not Understand Lexingtonians' Pitcher Porter.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
LEXINGTON, VA., April 10.—In an errorless game to-day Washington and Lee University defeated St. John's College, 5 to 0. Porter, pitcher for the Varsity, was something great, striking out thirteen men and allowing but two hits. Washington and Lee did good stick work, and the game was a frequent test of the pitcher's nerve.

Score by innings:
R. H. E.
Wash. & L. 0 0 2 1 0 2 0 5 0
St. John's, 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 3 4
Batteries: Washington and Lee University, Porter and Trimble; St. John's, Reles and Rouse.

Struck out—by Porter, 13; by Reynolds, 2. Base on balls—off Porter, 2; off Reynolds, 6. Two-base hits—McGuire, Trotter, Kay and Orth; single by Reles, 5; Laval, 14; Orth, 8. Earned runs—Lynchburg, 1; New York, 11. Time of game, 1 hour and 20 minutes. Umpire, N. G. Wilson.
